In a nutshell, I just need to setup click handlers to a button and change the prop _clickCount. This is the code I have so far. state = { _clickCount: 0 } componentDidMount() { this.setState({_clickCount: 0}) } _onClick = (event) => { this.setState({_clickCount: this.state._clickCount + 1}) } render() { const {_clickCount} = this.state return (_clickCount:{_clickCount} click me!) } And I expect the output to be something like _clickCount

Thread: Acer Eg31m V10 Manual 22Â .Q: What is the need to check returned values in stored procedures? I am starting to learn stored procedures using SSMS and when ever I do not check the returned values, the error for the query does not tell me whether the query has failed or the data is incorrect. What is the need to check if the values returned are correct? A:

There are two questions: Why do we check returned values? The idea is to be able to identify if the procedure failed and if the data is correct. How do we check the returned value? There are different ways of doing so. The most common are: Using IF/ELSE. The result of the procedure is returned in a scalar value and the rest of the query is executed accordingly. Wrapping the result set in an outer SELECT. The best way is to use the first one. Try this on SQL Fiddle. CREATE PROCEDURE dbo.GetCompanyNameByCode (@code char(3), @manufacturer int, @seller int, @symbol varchar(10)) AS SELECT @symbol = manufacturer FROM dbo.Company c WHERE c.Code = @code AND c.Manufacturer = @manufacturer AND c.Seller = @seller GO --

Alternative one SET @code = 'ABC' SET @symbol = NULL SET @manufacturer = 5 SET @seller = 10 DECLARE @ret INT EXEC @ret = dbo.GetCompanyNameByCode @code, @manufacturer, @seller, @symbol SELECT @symbol = (CASE WHEN @ret = 1 THEN @symbol ELSE NULL END) RETURN @symbol GO -- 648931e174
