Have you ever tried to add a simple list with a checkbox/radio button in a detail-record form where the fields come from the master record? Or how about inserting a datagrid into a form with some easy-to-use controls, which automatically adapts to row height and allows the user to add rows or delete them from the datagrid? Then you will have fun when using the filter feature in Escapoo or the real-time formula suggestion in Excel-to-Visio importer. In case you need some more tools from the realm of form design, how about the rich dynamic form designer, thanks to which you can create your very own form elements that you can customize in any way imaginable, or the full-featured form wizard, which is even able to create Excel formulas based on the data entered in the forms fields! Finally, my favorite tool is the open document export, which allows you to upload any open document to Escapoo and automatically creates a new database from which you can easily export the results. With Escapoo you can even go beyond simple forms and easily create the following forms that many of you have heard of but are normally hard to design and usually end up with a mess of code that nobody understands: infographics, bingo boards, paint editors, invoice templates, airbus targets, etc. If you are fed up with all this design drudgery, then you will have to check out Escapoo. There is no need to stick to Windows Forms when there is a wide range of tools that will extend the functionality of your applications, let you achieve your goals in a much easier way or, perhaps, make you a more efficient developer. Have fun!
