The portable, compact edition of the image manipulation software ImageMagick can reduce the size of images by losing extra pixels that don't matter, decrease the file size of large pictures, sharpen photos, and display images according to their matte, grayscale, or colordepth preferences. It can also create GIFs from multiple pictures, cut out parts of images, make shadows appear on photos, write text on images, alter colors, blur or sharpen images, create overlaps, and combine or arrange several pictures into a canvas. The interface can be navigated using a visual browser and through a menu-driven dialog box. In fact, many of the interface's functions can be accessed using the command line.
